

Description

Our Network Audit service provides you with a comprehensive inventory of your network components and detailed information about those components. Using advanced diagnostic equipment, we gather information on components such as servers, workstations, and hard disk types, as well as Internet connectivity devices, including bridges, routers, hubs, BIOS, software applications, network operating systems, and associated utilities.

We provide detailed reports on each device attached to a LAN, such as serial numbers, addresses, and other data. This data is crucial for:

- Upgrading components
- Resolving compatibility issues
- Quickly repairing the system in the event of a hardware or software failure

The Network Audit document you receive lists all the pertinent equipment that comprises your network and includes detailed technical specifications on each component. In effect, it offers you an authoritative, easily referenced, encyclopedia-like document on your network equipment.
